

The microporous heat insulation body consists of a core of a compressed heat insulation material containing from 30 to 90 % by weight of a finely divided metal oxide and further additives, wherein one or both surfaces thereof have a cover of a heat-resistant material and where the covers are the same or different and at least one side consists of prefabricated mica sheets.